

Does the Web click with you?

With just the click of a mouse you're off to anywhere and anything. Information, education, entertainment...you name it! Practically, whatever you can think of and type into a search engine will yield you some sort of result. In many cases, multiple results! And most likely, you will find links at one site that will whisk you away to another site with even more information and more links to other locations on the web! It's almost endless!!

The internet has become so commonplace, so "everyday", that it is plainly, just a part of life. E-mail and personal profile websites, recipes and news, research and statistics, music and video, reference and data...all at your fingertips.

And yet, each site doesn't come from thin air. It has to be built. It has to be designed and structured. The navigation has to be thought through. It has to function and it has to be given a look... a distinctive look, if it needs to stand out from the hundreds of other sites out there.

At duCret, you'll learn about hierarchy in terms of page structure for a site. HTML and CSS will be explained. Various graphic formats, multimedia and web animations will be covered. You will create and optimize graphics for your site. Learn to maximize your presence on the web!

At duCret, the instructors who teach classes for Web and the internet are working professionals. They bring with them the knowledge and experience of what really takes place in the industry. You learn first-hand of what's involved to conceive and develop materials from start to finish. As a matter-of-fact, the pieces shown below are samples of actual work executed by the fine art instructors at duCret.
